Healthy Families Expands

Healthy Families is a voluntary and confidential home-based service which provides families with information about services available in the community, information about the safety, health and care of newborns, and access to the latest information on brain development. Healthy Families was already serving Clark, Scott, Jefferson, Fayette, Union and Rush counties and has expanded into Jackson County in September of 2012.

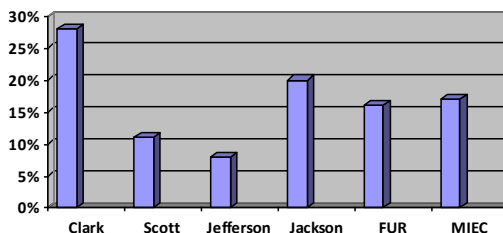

Healthy Families offers:

- The latest information on infant and child brain development
- Age-appropriate developmental screenings
- Information on budgeting, transportation, positive discipline, community resources, and education/employment opportunities
- Support in setting and achieving family goals
- Information and support in keeping up with childhood immunizations and health care
- Fun, family-oriented activities
- Parent-child activities that promote infant brain development and bonding.
